

Kyle Perez manages Hach's Global Open Innovation group. Kyle's group is responsible for identifying, cultivating, and vetting potential partners with the goal of filling product gaps in Hach's core portfolio or helping Hach enter strategic market adjacencies. He has spent more than 10 years working in various business development and product management roles across private equity, venture capital, capital markets, and, most recently, water quality. Kyle holds a BA from Middlebury College and an MBA from the Darden School of Business at the University of Virginia.
